

This Holton Eco-Preserve (HEP) six-week class series will engage children in group and individual learning experiences that will promote a love of gardening, teach the important role that plants play in our current everyday life, and develop an appreciation of our environment.

Designed by Master Gardener Adrienne Potter Diaz for children ages 5- 12, our sessions are hands-on across a broad spectrum. There will be learning that touches on many subjects, such as:

Soil Basics	Earthworms (Vermiculture)
Composting	Plant Families
Bug Identification	Plant Folklore
Plant Usage (food & other)	Plant Origins
The Seed Cycle & Seed Saving	Weather Science
Rain Barrels/ Water Management	Sustainable Gardening Basics

Friday classes will begin February 9th at 9:30a to 11:30 on the Holton Eco-Preserve* grounds, 13411 Shire Lane, 33912 (north off Daniels Parkway, between I-75 and 6 Mile Cypress).
